

ABOUT THE STATE

Happenings of Interest from Different Sections.

There are 22 cases of flu at the town farm in Bakersfield.

Mrs. A. C. Williams of South Albany has a sweet scented geranium which is five feet in height and reaches the ceiling of the room.

A snow slide from Merrill hill in West Danville buried the front side of the Pope house and left the snow nearly 20 feet deep in the road.

George N. Wood, for 25 years Sunday school superintendent and clerk and treasurer of the Congregational church in Milton, died there Wednesday of pneumonia.

Roy Lamson, who for 17 years has been steward at the Mary Fletcher hospital, has resigned and on April 1 will become a salesman for the G. S. Blodgett company of Burlington.

Belvidere, with a population of 429, is said to have between 100 and 150 cases of influenza, few nurses and no physician nearer than Jeffersonville or Waterville, about six miles away.

The town of Woodbury should be placed among the Vermont towns which are paying a large percentage of their tax money for the support of schools. Woodbury appropriated $1.55 on the dollar of the grand list.

William Radway of Dakota, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Charles Severance of St. Johnsbury and a frequent visitor in that town, Newport and Derby Line, was killed on the beach at Daytona, Fla., March 10, when an airplane making a flight there fell to the ground.

The house and horse barn on the farm of Ross Phelps in Jeffersonville were destroyed by fire last Friday morning. Mr. Phelps had traded the farm with parties in Essex and the writings were to have been signed the Monday morning previous, but this was not done because of the illness of Mr. Phelps with the mumps.

The Frank Miller farmhouse in Newport Center, owned and occupied by A. Phoenix, was burned recently, with a loss of $4,500. Most of the furniture was burned with the house. Mr. Phoenix was in Newport, visiting his brother, and Mrs. Phoenix was alone with the children. The fire apparatus was unable to get through the snow and the neighbors formed a bucket brigade, saving the barns, which were in great danger.

HOME GARDENS.

Thrift Food Plots Important in 1920; Begin Now to Make Backyard Busy.

One way of reducing the cost of living is open to every man, woman and child who can get the use of an idle plot of ground. That way lies through the planting and cultivation of a home garden—a thrift garden. War gardens played their part in the great mobilization of resources in war-time—thrift gardens now have their own job to do, helping households to feed themselves.

The reasons for thrift gardens are many and various. The same reasons that existed last year and the year before still are present. Thrift gardens will produce food where nothing otherwise would be produced, they will reduce family food bills, they will return abundantly in proportion to the time and effort devoted to them. But added to these reasons is another one peculiar to this year.

Less Commercial Planting.

Reports to the United States department of agriculture indicate that the plantings by commercial vegetable gardeners will be materially reduced this year, because the commercial gardeners see no way of obtaining enough labor to conduct their usual operations. The commercial gardeners claim that they have paid high wages in endeavors to keep up production, but that the returns have been so small that they will not justify the continuance of this expense. At least, that is the report reaching the department of agriculture from seed merchants, whose operations at this season are regarded as a good indication of what conditions will be a month or two from now.

If the reduction of commercial gardening becomes a fact, the obvious result will be fewer vegetables and higher prices. The logical remedy lies partly in home gardens, but that will not remedy the situation, for it will not harm even if the commercial acreage should be up to normal, as any surplus of fresh vegetables may be saved by canning, drying and other means of conservation and the surplus kept so that it will be useful next fall and winter.

Many More Gardens Needed.

Thousands of families learned the value of home gardens in war-time. United States department of agriculture specialists believe it essential that these families' interests be maintained and that other thousands be added to the home food producers.

"Now is the time to begin making plans for your 1920 thrift garden," these specialists declare. "First, locate a piece of suitable land; second, make your plan; third, get your seeds; fourth, start work at the earliest possible moment."

A request to the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., will bring a booklet that will tell how to plan your garden, how much seed to buy, how to get the land in shape for cultivation, how to take every other step in the process of making your back yard or some other vacant lot help feed you.

POS-LAM VITAL TO SUFFERERS FROM ECZEMA

If you have eczema, your prompt use of Poslam may mean all the difference between immediate comfort and a long period of itching distress. Take the easy, pleasant way to quick relief. Apply Poslam right on the raw places that burn and itch. Feel a burden lifted as the skin is soothed and soothed. You will know then to what a high state of efficiency this reliable remedy has been brought. Poslam is concentrated. Short treatment suffices for most minor troubles.

Sold everywhere. For free sample write to: Emergency Laboratories, 232 West 47th street, New York City.

Poslam is mediated with Poslam, should be used if skin is tender and sensitive.—Adv.

Government Clothes a Failure.

The "standard clothing" scheme, proclaimed enthusiastically in government circles in England some time ago, seems definitely to have failed. The idea of the paternal government was that the cost of living would be reduced, if instead of certain fabrics, made in certain styles, were offered to the hard-pressed consumer at government-controlled prices. If the government could outfit the army and navy satisfactorily and cheaply, why should not the civilian population be similarly benefited?

It was a plausible idea, but it worked only so far as the production of a very respectable line of clothing was concerned—with the government assuming the risk of selling it. One day the minister who had charge of the matter allowed it to be known that he had on hand no fewer than 250,000 standard suits which nobody appeared to want. Scolders suggested that there were probably a million of the suits in storage or gathering dust on the shop shelves.

Retailers throughout the realm joined in testifying that they had cheerfully taken the suits, displayed them in their windows and done their best to sell them. But the plan, it appeared, was a failure. The government, as a rule, channeled the government brand. It followed, naturally, perhaps, with immense quantities of cloth withdrawn from the market for these suits, that the price of all other garments rose.

A revival of the scheme, with the manufacturers instead of the government invited to take the risk of marketing standard clothing, has recently been talked about, but has apparently ended in talk. Nobody but a bureaucrat of the most fanatical socialistic views would think of imposing on industry a burden that has proved too much for the government itself to carry comfortably.—Providence Journal.

If Mothers Only Knew.

During these days when children are complaining of colds, fevers, stomach troubles and irregular bowels, if mothers only knew what Mother Gray's Sweet Powders would do for their children, no family would ever be without them. These powders are so easy and pleasant to take and so effective in their action that mothers who once use them always tell others mothers about them. Sold by druggists everywhere.
